SUPERVISORS MOVE TO ASSUME OWNERSHIP OF OCEAN SHORE RAILROAD; MAY CO-OPERATE WITH SAN FRANCISCO BOARD.

Operation of the Ocean Shore Railroad, recently abandoned by order of the State Railroad Commission, may be undertaken by the county of San Mateo, following the adoption Monday of two resolutions by the board of supervisors, one authorizing the board to form an assessment district and purchase the railroad, the other seeking an order from the Railroad Commission to discontinue the dismantling of the road.

The commission is asked to appraise the value of the property for the county authorities and to initiate action looking toward the formation of an assessment district, after which the supervisors can levy assessments against property owners for the purchase and operation of the utility. People of the Halfmoon Bay district are behind the new move to save the Ocean Shore.

The action was taken after James B. Gordon, attorney of San Mateo, had appeared before the board representing the western or coastside section of the county, and requested such action on behalf of his clients.

It is the desire of the Halfmoon Bay district to have the work of dismantling the road stopped by the commission until such time as San Mateo county as a county or a portion of the county as a public utility district can take over the properties.

The action of the board has no reference to the portion of the road located outside of the county of San Mateo. The matter of the city and county of San Francisco taking over that portion of the road within its Francisco board of supervisors, and should the two counties determine to purchase the properties it is probable that an arrangement would be made whereby the road would be jointly opening of the fourth Red Cross operated.

Your paper will reach you late this week, for which you may blame the Pacific Gas and Electric Company. Electric power is a fine thing-when you have it.

A GREAT DAY IN SPITE OF RAIN.

In spite of a great climatic handicap South San Francisco held a most notable celebration Thursday. After all, the chief blow that the weather FONTANA-In South San Francisco, delivered was in the fact that hundreds from distant parts of the county who would otherwise have attented were frightened away by the rain. South San Francisco's part was done, and done bravely. There was a big throng in attendance in spite of the bad weather, and everything went off fine. Once more South San Francisco has proven that it "knows how." To succeed in such an affair in spite of a great handicap is more to the credit of the town than to have scored an overwhelming success with everything smilingly propitious.

HERE AND THERE.

Young man, if you have a good job in the country, hang on to it. If you want to walk the streets week after week in a fruitless search for work, go to one of the big cities

Newspapers are not parading the fact, but those who understand conditions in the large cities can tell you that employers are laying off their help in increasing numbers every day, and the end is not in sight. A good country has many attractions. The army of the unemployed has JOKES BY JURY.

One of the most brutal premeditated murders ever committed in this country occurred in Chicago. Carl Wanderer, a former army officer, shot to death his wife and their unborn child and a "poor boob" who had been hired and convincing address defending the by the murderer to stage a fake holdup. A jury of men, supposedly sane, commission. fixed his punishment at twenty-five years in the penitentiary. Good behavior will reduce it to fourteen years.

Decent people the country over have been amazed and disgusted at this DAVE FARRELL BRINGS BRIDE verdict. It is becoming so increasingly difficult to mete out justice through men juries that courts and prosecutors are calling in women for jury service. It is painfully evident that their sense of honor, right, and justice is far superior to that of modern man.

A jury of women might hesitate at the death penalty, but they at least would have given this human monster a life sentence in the penitentiary. The correction of these nauseating jokes by jury appear to be up to the womanhood of our country.

Tuesday bringing with him a new wife, who was Miss Loretta Phillips of this city. Both young people are well known here. They will make their home here, Mr. Farrell being "Nurse Marjorie." Marie Osborne in "Daddy No. 2."

The League of Nations is, or it isn't, just as you look at it. But to those of us who have been reading the pros and cons it seems to be both,

One way to get the laws of this country universally enforced is to go after the officials who fail to enforce them. Public officeholders will continue to lallypop as long as their constituents set the example.

Andrew Carnegie tried desperately hard to give away his great wealth and die a poor man, and he almost succeeded. His estate has been recently appraised and is valued at the insignificant sum of $23,000,000.

Foreign diplomats accredited to this country are warmly welcomed and soon find themselves possessed of hordes of friends. It has been officially ruled that booze shipped to them from abroad is not subject to seizure.

A squib writer, probably speaking from experience, remarks that some people marry for love and remain married for spite. And some, we might add, hitch up for money and unhitch as soon as they get it.

Just why they call them "soap box orators" we don't known. Most of them seldom use it.

It's no trouble at all to earn a hundred per cent on an investment in this town. Just take out a subscription to this paper and the deed is done.

We, however, never laugh at other people's jokes. But that is not our fault.

No, we have no humor to dispense on the subject of high prices this week. It evaporates every time we pay a bill.

Some people are never able to see the beam in their own eyes. But that probably is due to the fact that it is so large it obscures the sight.

CHATEAU FRONTENAC From CITADEL

French settlers of Quebec were almost constantly harried by the ferocious Iroquois, who many times killed the outposts and charged the stockade surrounding the fort itself, despite the fact that it was defended by small arms and cannon. The Iroquois came from what is now New York state, famous fort is still to be seen beneath the planking of the Terrace. When

It winds through the center of blocks of houses, many of which are connect-

Iroquois roamed, destroying their vil-

UEBEC, the cradle of New | Louis, a combination of residence and France, will celebrate its four fort, on the heights above. The early hundredth birthday within a few years. It is the oldest city in North America, and its story is not only history but romance. It is a unique city, standing alone as a sort of historical hyphen between the days that are and the days long gone by, which cannot be duplicated either in the old world or the new. Jacques Cartier, a sailor of St. Malo in France, discovered its site in 1533. He was the first white man to set foot upon the soil of Canada, the name of which is derived from "Kanata," the Indian word meaning "A Collection of Huts." Two years later Cartier made a second voyage to the St. Lawrence and became friendly with Donnacona. an Indian chief who was ruler of Stadacona, a village which then occupied part of the present site of Quebec.

Following Cartier came Champlain, Frontenac, La Salle, and scores of other intrepid soldiers of fortune, who founded and built the city, fought with the Indians, and explored the Great Lakes, the Mississippi river and vast areas of the interior of the United States, which were named Louisiana will answer you from the mouths of by La Salle.

in Quebec. Its inhabitants spoke French more than three centuries ago, and the majority of them still speak the same language. Many old buildings with romantic histories are still to be seen, and in striking contrast to them are splendid buildings of modern construction.

"What a Beak?"

When Cartier's sailors first sighted a second English fleet under Sir Ho-Cape Diamond, a mighty crag projecting into the St. Lawrence, and towering 200 feet above it, they are said to have exclaimed, "Quel Bec," meaning "What a beak." This, according to some authorities, is how Quebec got its name. The first settlement at Quebec was on the shore at the foot of Cape Diamond, and later Frontenac built the Chateau St.

hill climbing. Within a stone's throw of Dufferin Terrace is the Place d'Armes, once the camp of Huron Indians under the protection of the French guns, and later the scene of miliary parades, public meetings and fashionable promenades during the old French regime. Rising 100 feet above Dufferin Terrace and 300 feet above the St. Lawrence, is the famous old Citadel with its stone walls and frowning cannon. In winter the shoulder of this hill is the starting point of the triple toboggan slide down which the gayly-clad merrymakers speed the full length of the terrace. But a few yards from them is the "Governor's Garden," the chief attraction of which is a huge shaft of granite erected in 1828 to the memory of Wolfe and Montcalm, both of whom were killed in the battle on the plains of Abraham near by, which ended the rule of the French. History, however, is not the only interesting thing about Quebec. It is a handsome, well-built city, with fine streets and splendid public buildings. The people are lovers of the great out-doors, and there is sport aplenty in both summer and winter. When the ice king has spread his mantle of ermine over the heights, the people enjoy every known winter sport including snowshoeing, tobogganing, skiing, bob sledding, hockey and skating. In the summer near-by fishing resorts are well patronized, and camping and boating number their devotees by thousands. There are many side trips of great interst including those to Montmorency Falls, a cataract 100 feet higher than Niagara; Ste. Anne Beaupre, the famous shrine; the Quebec bridge, the greatest engineering feat of the kind in the world; the Indian Lorette, still the home of the Huron Indians, and Point Levis, opposite Quebec, with its three forts from which Wolfe shelled Quebec more than a century and a half ago.
